

Nathan Tsuji, University of Washington

Nathan Tsuji is one of the strongest pillars Washington has ever had. His dedication to gymnastics and attention to detail are known across the Nation. But it is his sportsmanship, fairness and friendship to all that is commendable. Gymnastics has always been a huge part of Nathan's life. Hailing from Santa Cruz, CA, he has garnered multiple titles and All-American awards in FX, PB and AA. He has stuck with gymnastics through many injuries including a broken back and a dislocated ankle. The closest to him know that it was also right after his junior year that he lost his mother to cancer. Regardless, he has served as Team Captain the last two years and managed to clinch the National Collegiate All-Around title in 2017. He is majoring in sports medicine.
